DETAILED ACTION

Claims 1-9 are pending in the instant application.

Election/Restriction

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-3, drawn to methods for the production of cobalamin, classifiable in class 435, subclass 86.
- II. Claim 4, drawn to a method of discovering genes involved in vitamin B₁₂ biosynthesis, classifiable in class 435, subclass 6.
- III. Claims 5-7 and 9, drawn to nucleic acid compositions, host cells, and methods of expression, classifiable in class 536, subclass 23.5.
- IV. Claim 8, drawn to polypeptides, classifiable in class 530, subclass 350.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I and II and III are unrelated. The inventions are distinct if the (1) the inventions as claimed are either not capable of use together or can have a materially different design, mode of operation, function, or effect; (2) the inventions do not overlap in scope, i.e., are mutually exclusive; and (3) the inventions as claimed are not obvious variants. See MPEP § 806.05(j). In the instant case, the inventions as claimed comprise distinct methods: Methods of producing cobalamin (Group I); methods of screening for biosynthetic genes (Group II); methods of expressing recombinant polypeptides (Group III). Furthermore, the inventions as claimed do not encompass overlapping subject matter and there is nothing of record to show them to be obvious variants.

Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different modes of operation, different functions, or different effects (MPEP § 806.04, MPEP § 808.01). The methodology and materials necessary for each of these distinct methods differ significantly, and each Group constitutes a biologically, chemically and functionally distinct and different composition and method and therefore each involves a patentably distinct invention. Therefore, each method is divergent in materials and steps. For these reasons the inventions of these different Groups are patentably distinct.

Inventions III and IV are unrelated. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different designs, modes of operation, and effects (MPEP § 802.01 and § 806.06). In the instant case, the different inventions are drawn to chemically, biologically, structurally and functionally distinct compounds. The nucleic acid compositions and host cells of Group III are chemically and structurally distinct from the polypeptides of Group IV. The searches required for proper examination of each distinct group are not coextensive: A search of the nucleic acids of Group III would not be coextensive with the search required for the proper examination of Group IV, although the searches may be overlapping. The polypeptides in Group IV are not required to make the polynucleotides of Group III, and vice versa (e.g. a polypeptide can be synthesized or purified from a biological source).

Furthermore, searching the inventions of Groups comprising the different nucleic acid molecules, the polypeptides, and the methods comprising them together would impose a serious search burden. In the instant case, the search of the distinct methods and compositions are not coextensive. There is a search burden also in the non-patent literature. Prior to the concomitant construction and utilization of the different nucleic acid constructs of interest there may be journal articles devoted solely to one Group that would not have described the compositions and methods of the other Group. Searching, therefore is not coextensive. As such, it would be burdensome to search the inventions of the different Groups together.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).

Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a request under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).
